

Teachers:

Asya Baldwin

“Waiting for the Spring”

Marci Blattenberger

“Ice Fairy”

Multi techniques
And bling

About Our Teachers

Asya Baldwin is from St. Petersburg, Russia, now living in Virginia. She studied Fine Art at the College of National Art in St. Petersburg. She is known for her stunning wildlife paintings, inspired by classic art and wildlife modern artists. She has been teaching in the U.S. for six years.

Marci Blattenberger is an internationally known teacher, artist and champion of the art of porcelain painting. She formed PPIO (Porcelain Painters International Online) to provide Information and inspiration to new and seasoned porcelain artists. She is known for unusual techniques and dramatic style.

Michael Turner is a powerful artist with a national following. He is known for fluid lines and dramatic colors that bring his paintings of flowers and grapes to life. He teaches with southern style and easy wit.

Randy Wollet describes his painting style as a contemporary version of the traditional style of porcelain painting, often with hints of antique painting techniques. His background includes oil and acrylic painting, but his passion is porcelain.

Vendor: Mary Ashcroft Seehagen has been a force in the porcelain painting world for more than 40 years. She has a vast supply of colors, estate china, supplies and studies. She is known for scenes, florals, borders and boxes. She will be an alternate teacher if needed.

Teachers:

Michael Turner

Peonies

with black or colored background

Randy Wollet

Apples and Grapes

(Note: image is representative. School Study may have slightly different composition to fit 11x14 shape)